“Speak it out, Simon! We’re Listening to Ye!”
*Outdoor Drama Unveils Compelling Story of America’s Beginnings

(Manteo, NC - June 30, 2008) In Paul Green’s The Lost Colony, the Portuguese navigator Simon Fernando informs the colonists of the dangerous and strange new world. Audiences attending the drama have been captivated by director Robert Richmond’s re-telling of Paul Green’s symphonic drama, describing the acting and stage direction as a cinematic spectacle. Micah Lyons of San Marcos Texas portrays the nay-saying pilot. The Lost Colony’s recovery from a September fire that destroyed costumes, sets, props and other treasured items is evident in every stitch, brush stroke, and nail of this production. If you have not seen The Lost Colony recently, the new designs and stage direction of this year’s production make it a production worth revisiting. Children accompanied by a paying adult are admitted free on Mondays and half-priced on Fridays and Sundays. To take advantage of these tickets discounts, call the box office at 252-473-3414.
