

Play a part in The Lost Colony
by endowing one of the seats in Historic Waterside Theatre

On July 4, 1937, The Lost Colony symphonic drama opened to a “Standing Room Only” audience of over 2,000 guests. Few could have guessed that Pulitzer Prizewinning Playwright Paul Green’s “pageant,” produced on a remote island off the Carolina coast, would still be going strong more than sixty-nine years and in excess of the three thousand performances later.

Endowing a seat in historic Waterside Theatre is a thoughtful and distinctive way to honor a loved one or to commemorate a special occasion. An engraved plaque will be affixed to the seat of your choice with a personalized inscription, creating an enduring remembrance that will make a lasting difference to The Lost Colony.

A pledge will endow a seat, including the engraved plaque on the seat back. Pledges are tax deductible to the fullest extent allowed by law. Requests for specific numbered seats will be honored as seats are available.
